

Inclusion of LGBTQ+ Employees at the University of Twente

“INVISIBLE INCLUSION OR UNNOTICED EXCLUSION?”

BY DR. MAARTEN RENKEMA

@maartenrenkema

Motivation

- Diversity Day 2019
- Academic research shows that LGBTQ+ employees face negative consequences at work.
- Gay employees remain silent for fear of discrimination
- Lack of LGBT-supportive policies; whereas they are associated with higher productivity and profitability
- Result: research proposal for UT Incentive fund (ambassadors network)

OPINIE

LHBTI'ers worden op het werk niet gelijk behandeld, al denken we van wel

Jojanneke van der Toorn Michiel Kolman 16 mei

Maar liefst 36% van de LHBTI'ers ervaart discriminatie op de werkvloer. Hetero's krijgen bijvoorbeeld meer ruimte om over hun privé-leven te vertellen dan homo's. Gericht inclusiebeleid is hoognodig, vinden hoogleraar Jojanneke van der Toorn en Michiel Kolman van stichting Workplace Diversity.

LAATSTE UPDATES 08:38

De afgelopen jaren zijn niet meer Nederlanders positief gaan denken over homo- en biseksualiteit. Waar in 2018 nog 78 procent van de bevolking ouder dan achttien jaar positief dacht over lhbt'ers, is dat in 2020 76 procent. Het aantal Nederlanders dat 'neutraal' tegenover homo- en biseksualiteit staat, is in de afgelopen jaren gestegen van 17 tot 20 procent. Dat blijkt dinsdag uit onderzoek van het Sociaal en Cultureel Planbureau (SCP).

Background

- Diversity is related to differences between individuals in a group based on some of their characteristics (Harrison & Klein, 2007) – observable (e.g., gender, age, race) and non-observable (e.g., culture, education, orientation) (e.g., Mor Barak, 2015; Roberson, 2006).
- Inclusion = the full participation and contribution of individuals and reaching their full potential (Roberson, 2006)
- An inclusive workplace as the one that has a work atmosphere where differences are valued and welcomed, and where the work benefits from appropriation of the full potential of all employees (Garosek, 2000; Barak, 2016)
- Individuals need to have a sense of both uniqueness and belongingness to experience inclusion (Shore et al., 2011)

Background

- Increasing attention for and protection of LGBTQ+ identities and rights in management research (Byington et al., 2021)
- LGBTQ+ employees experience conflicts more often, which are also unsolved more regularly (Fletcher, 2021)
- Earlier studies have identified mistreatment and microaggressions against LGBTQ+ also at universities (Dozier, 2015; Beagan et al., 2021)
- Nevertheless, research shows that the presence of LGBT-supportive policies is associated with higher firm value, productivity, and profitability (Pichler et al., 2018)

Background

- Disclosure = refers to the extent to which LGBTQ+ individuals express their sexual orientation and/or gender identity to others (e.g. Beauregard et al., 2018)
- Disclosure is related to higher job satisfaction, commitment and well-being (e.g. Day & Schoenrade, 1997; Fletcher & Everly, 2021)
 - It can also lead to discrimination (Dozier, 2015)
- LGBTQ+ support networks help to create a safe space and facilitate interaction.

Research Approach

- Views on experiences, culture & policies
- Recommendations and action-points
- 25 interviews (30-60 minutes)
- "Can you tell me something about your experience as LGBTQ+ employee..."
- Employees, Managers, HR
- Grounded Theory - open and thematic coding

Findings

- Seven main “Themes”
- Theme 1: Identification
- Theme 2: Coming out experiences: open and restrained
- Theme 3: Employee Experiences: positive and negative
- Theme 4: Connection and Support among peers
- Theme 5: Role of the supervisor: positive and negative
- Theme 6: Role of Organization: Visibility & Support
- Theme 7: Ideas for improvement

"...just casual reaction. So yeah more on the supportive side."

"Many people dropped by and said that they've read or heard about it. All in a positive and nice way. Luckily I haven't had any negative experiences with it, that people say weird stuff or so."

- 4 lesbians; 12 gay and 4 BTQ+
- 15 Dutch and 5 Internationals
- 16 academic and 9 non-academic
- 6 PhD students
- 2 managers, 1 HR and one SEG

Theme 1 - "Identification"

Theme 2: "Coming out"

Not a one-time event:

"...when you meet a new person... when it gets to that, is it wise to say something or the opposite? Maybe. Those are things you always consider."

Considerations for disclosure:

"I always let other people introduce themselves first. [...] Just strategically, first hear what someone does and then you can adjust your story accordingly."

"I also don't think it's necessary to share... Let's say... For sure, I am not happy that I cannot be 100 percent me, but yeah, I don't want to go through the conversation let's say."

Passive disclosure:

"OK if you ask something I would reply, but I'm not the kind of person that I... first share with everybody, like hey I have a boyfriend."

Being LGBTQ+ is normal:

"I am who I am and I am not representative for that [LGBTQ+] group, those are all individuals with their own wishes and ambitions."

Theme 2: "Coming out"

Misinterpret LGBTQ+ identity:

"because of my partner and children I actually do not look like a LGBTQ I think."

Lack of understanding:

"I also think that the way he sees the world.. Even if I would say to him 'I'm gay' I don't think he would understand. I mean, it's just like, you know, when people have a tunnel vision, like this is the only way and that's the only way... all the rest doesn't even exist."

Negative coming-out experiences

Rejection:

"Then we had a conversation about that she really had problems with it, that she couldn't reconcile with her religion, because it [marriage] is for man and woman, and that she knew examples from her congregation that people were cured."

"yeah actually I don't have them [experiences]. I don't have experiences as a lesbian, I have experiences as me, as a person"

"Actually, I cannot imagine a better organization to work for than I was back then to be homosexual."

"I remember that on the international coming out day, the university put the rainbow flag with the university flag. And that was a very beautiful thing for me."

"Yes, and on that to be honest, I am very lucky, because I have very good coworkers. And I would say that on this side there are no complaints."

Discrimination in hiring:

"I applied for a job within [department]. I met all the requirements, but I wasn't selected, and I asked why not. [...] I said but why am I not hired, tell me where I don't meet the requirements, because I am curious. [...] Well, then it was said 'well, yes there is already a gay in this department and when there would be another one then they will only talk about the gay pride and I don't want that."

No attention:

"Indifferent I think, not special. Yes, indifferent, that is the best description [about culture towards LGBTQ+ from university]."

HR policies:

"I don't know whether you've heard this before, but my boyfriend and I are busy to start a family. But we make zero chance to get parental leave, pregnancy leave or partner leave, because both of us are no women."

Theme 3 - "Employee Experiences"

"You know, also when there are multicultural, like I said it was a very multicultural group, then I didn't share too much also for this reason."

<https://www.context.global/>

Sub-theme International Context

"If I go to a conference I always check whether I am legal. [...] I don't go to countries where I am illegal."

Theme 4 - "Connection & Support"

"You know, maybe it sounds stupid, but I don't need support. Well, sometimes I notice that colleagues ask me about it. But I myself don't have that; I don't need that support."

"But I noticed a week or two ago that it is nice, that you perceive some support. That you are not the only one. That there are more people, that feels more comfortable."

TH!NK WITH PRIDE

“The working group strives for more visibility of the LGBTQI+ community at the university to increase integration and to achieve a diverse UT-community whereby all individuals are equal and feel free to be themselves. With the visibility we want to stimulate conversations with each other with the result of having a university where you can be at your best!”

Theme 4 - “Connection & Support”

“That it is there for people who need it, that they can meet others. I think it’s mainly for people who are in the phase just after coming out. If you are looking for grip and support, looking for other people like you.”

“Just to have the feeling that people understand you and that you are not the exception. Now I don’t mind anymore, but in the past that was different.”

"In my eyes she sets an example. She thinks about it [LGBTQ+] very positively and she is also very enthusiastic about it. She also joins events when they are organized, despite busy agendas. I find that very positive and I feel supported by it."

"I found it particularly pathetic... like I said, it matters that no one joins [bullying], but I think a manager should do more about it. The moment they hear something like that, a person needs to be addressed [...] not every manager want to take the confrontational approach...[...] These things need to be nipped in the bud, you can't tolerate it."

"One, I don't know, and the third one that's my daily adviser, he doesn't have to know. [...] my daily supervisor is very, very, very religious. I don't think it has to do with religion, per say, but it's a very let's say closed minded person, so I wouldn't feel comfortable sharing.[...] I have been told, like from people in the group, 'don't tell him'"

Theme 5 - "Role of Supervisor"

Organizational culture:

"Honestly I must say that the UT is very open minded in terms of employees. I mean, I had my bad experiences, but that is with two individuals. And if I look at with how many people I have collaborated. [...] You know, that is only positive and never been an issue."

Conservatism:

"I do think that the university is quite conservative, especially compared to other universities."

Information and communication

"No, I didn't because I didn't know about it [raising the flag] to be honest. I just saw it now after that, a friend of mine told me, hey, today's is this day."

Organizational signaling:

"I think it is good that, from a symbolic perspective, things like coming out day, the flag, the little sofa... That is good to show, this is who we are as organization. As organization we want to be inclusive."

Diversity policies:

"Well, no .. because in my mind they probably didn't do anything, but it probably would be wrong."

"I don't think you should be too prominent, because that will also again bother people."
