

Re-elect Holger Schiele.

For 15 years, I have been at UT as a professor of technology management and supply. Currently, I serve as chairman of the faculty council. This involves acquiring "representation know-how" by understanding faculty laws and rights, learning university mechanisms, and building networks within the university community involving the other councils.

A few highlights of our work and aspiration:

1. Represent Members: The FC organised feedback sessions and received diverse requests from staff, which we forwarded to the board. For example, we pushed for satisfying the default legal requirement to hold elections for program committees.
2. Safeguard: Our faculty's financial situation is unstable. It's crucial to monitor developments and be there to advocate for all faculty members' rights, in case significant changes occur.
3. Increase Participation: A goal is to boost involvement from all faculty members to incorporate diverse knowledge, enhance participation, thus achieving higher job satisfaction and an affluent faculty environment.
